Open-Ended Questions

An important element is Open-ended Questions. The teacher creates the appropriate toolbox for each student by utilising the Open-ended Questions. It depends on the topic of each course (Time Management, Storytelling etc.)

Know your audience

The most challenging part is finding what fits a class and each child individually.

It is important to read the audience first and refrain from using the same toolkits for every class.

Technological way

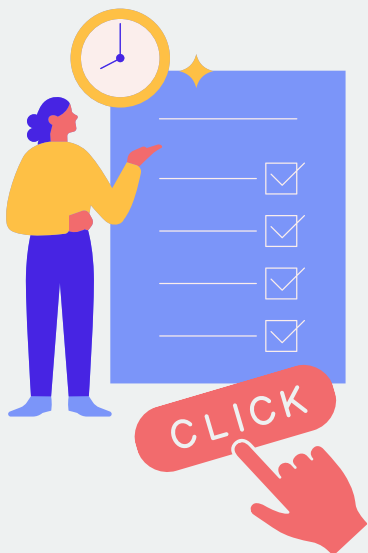

Tecnological Tools

Technological tools differ depending on the subject of education. The important thing is choosing a technological tool to operate through experience. Recommend a tool if you have used it and know that this will help the students.

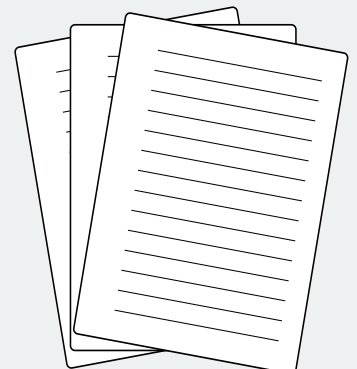

TIME MANAGEMENT

An important part is time management. Various tools such as Toggl help with this kind of class. Another important tool is Google Calendar, or if you want to create content, you can choose Grammarly. However, such tools require you to know how to manage them properly if you create content and learn how to teach students to use them.

TRADITIONAL TOOLS

But we don't forget the traditional tools, such as handwritten notes. The best way to learn is the combination of both.

HOW TO BE A EDUPRENEUR

CONTINUOUS TRAINING

The most important of all is the continuous training of the teacher, i.e. lifelong learning.

CREATIVITY

An important factor is Creativity. We must find ways to optimise each person's experience. The goal is to motivate students to implement what they've learned outside class.

COMMUNICABILITY

Another critical factor is Communication and Communicability. If the educator decodes the knowledge with the right messages, that knowledge is well-spent because the students need to understand the value of the information. The goal is Communicability through effective communication.
